

Splitting up or divorcing? Already separated but need to agree what happens next about your home, children or finances?

If you're looking for a low cost separation, want to avoid court or hoping to keep things amicable, then we'd like to hear from you.

A BBC documentary series is working with National Family Mediation, the largest provider of family mediation in England and Wales that provides highly qualified family mediators to help separated couples come to agreement on vital issues.

1 in 3 marriages in Britain end in divorce, yet few people know there is a positive way to resolve practical problems and move forwards. We're looking for separating/separated couples who could use mediation and are prepared to share their experience to help others learn about it. If you need help and are interested to know more about this ground-breaking series, please contact:
